Re: FD 36514, Canadian National Railway Company, Grand Trunk Corporation, and CN's
Rail Operating Subsidiaries—Control—Kansas City Southern, the Kansas City Southern Railway
Company, Gateway Eastern Railway Company, and the Texas Mexican Railway Company

Dear Ms. Brown:

Edwin Bohr Electronics is a supplier of locomotive electronics for both CN & KCS for the last decade +.

Edwin Bohr supports the combination of Canadian National and Kansas City Southern because of the superior benefits a CN-KCS railway would bring by offering faster, safer, cleaner and more direct service for North-South trade.

As a supplier to the railway industry, this combination will be strategic as it will support the growth of trade between Mexico, USA and Canada and the growth of investment in rail network which will be both beneficial to us and also to the overall economy.

CN's successful track record of combination over the past 25+ years also provides assurance that CN will seamlessly be able to integrate and partner with KCS. Besides the benefits, we do not anticipate any negative impacts to our company, the environment or market competition.

Central to the Canadian National's bid for Kansas City Southern is the establishment of a voting trust that benefits Kansas City Southern shareholders. Edwin Bohr Electronics unequivocally supports approval of Canadian National's voting trust. Canadian National proposes the same voting trust structure as Canadian Pacific, which the Board recently approved with a modification. For the reasons the STB provided in making its decision, we believe Canadian National's voting trust should also receive approval. This outcome will allow Kansas City Southern's shareholders to make a fair and informed decision on combining with Canadian National.

Edwin Bohr Electronics is confident in and strongly supports Canadian National's proposed acquisition of Kansas City Southern for all of the reasons as stated above. We hope to see the premier 21st century railway come to life.

Sincerely,

Seth Cullers
