Attachments: Redacted

Hi Kevin,

OEA reviewed your proposed fencing plan in the priority areas. Only one minor modification Redacted
Please make sure CNR follows the direction of our cultural monitor while doing the fence installation. There may be areas where the soil is too soft to allow for use of a gator.

Our biologist completed the burrowing owl survey this morning and the site has been cleared for fence installation. She did encounter an angry rattlesnake this morning camped out in a burrowing owl hole. I've noted the general location in the attached PDF so you can make the field team aware. Stay safe out there.

Per item 2 below, we'd really like to prioritize installation of signs near Redacted. Please let us know if this is feasible and the timing for monitoring, etc.

Thank you,

Maggie Buckley

Thanks Kevin. Due to several folks traveling today I think we will likely get you a response to your fencing questions on Monday morning, as requested.

A few other follow-ups:

- 1) Our proposed patrol route is shown in the attached kmz with some specific suggestions:

Redacted

- 2) Can we please add one small section to our priority signage area? We'd like to add ~3 signs as soon as possible along [Redacted] We'd like them along [Redacted]
[Redacted] Glennda has some specific suggestions on sign placement if you'd like her to connect with Ray.
- 3) The 265 no trespassing/private property signs that we ordered from SETON arrived today in our Tempe office. Please let us know when CNR would like to swing by and pick them up. {Alan/Adam, I misspoke in our debrief yesterday – Jacobs did order signs to support the site protection but we currently have no other plans to provide construction management or materials support. Sorry for my confusion – must be the heat.}

Thank you!

Excellent, thank you.

We have a meeting set up for Monday with CNR to go over all the stipulations we discussed in our meeting yesterday. It is my understanding that we will be turning them loose to begin after that meeting.

If you could please provide any feedback on my previous email regarding the fencing in the priority areas prior to Monday before noon CDT, to make sure we have that captured in our meeting with CNR, that would be great.

Thanks,
