The Great Lakes Basin application is extremely brief in all of its answers. Their public necessity section is busy telling the Surface Transportation Board what their job is and then lists multiple benefits corporation will have from the rail line. The actual public benefits for citizens are listed as decreases in air pollution and rail accidents. GLBT as with everything else provides no proof of either of these claims. There has been, however, hundreds of letters written to the STB indicating how this project will harm the public, the environment and the rural economies. Additionally the list of groups opposing this line increases daily. The evidence is overwhelming that this project is not in the public's interest and it must be denied.
