I work in a Doctor's Office, here we have specialized jobs, we concentrate on one area so that we are experts in that area. The Great Lakes Basin project seems lost on the concept of doing just one thing. They claim to be a freight bypass, that trains will enter their track and not get off until they are past the city. In actuality they want to be everything to everyone. They are going to be a transfer line for intra-Chicagoland freight, they are going to allow farmers to build spurs and load grain right from the field (which of course could never work, they are going to be an intermodal yard, a repair center, a fire department, a toll-road for cars, operate an airport, they will have Amtrak cars, they are going to be a bypass and they are going to be the biggest and best of everything. This whole proposal has NO focus, they can not be all thing to all people and lie to get their way by saying they are building a freight bypass, this entire project needs an immediate no build ruling.
