The revised information submitted by the Great Lakes Basin railroad once again is less than accurate. The GLBT map submitted in their application shows an intersection with the IR railroad in LaSalle County, no where do they mention this in their new information. Why can they have the interchange on the map, but not mention it in the description of the counties and towns impacted? This line runs through the Village of Sheridan's village limits and the left off exchange runs through the Town of Serena. These towns were left off the list of impacted/served towns. I am also curious how the City of Chicago can not be mentioned on the list of cities served? Due to once again inaccurate information from GLBT I am asking for an immediate denial of their application.
