Public necessity for a project must include whether or not there is a need for the proposed service, in the case of the Great Lakes Basin Transportation request is there a lack of available rail facilities. The answer to that question is no, there are many rail lines, and rail providers in the proposed area. The public is not lacking in rail options in the areas GLBT plans to build in. Because there are existing adequate for the public needs facilities for rail travel in the area there is no public necessity for the proposed line. Please deny their request and issue a no build recommendation, GLBT has failed to show any public necessity for this line.
