Dear Ms. Johnson-Ball:

I oppose the installation of a "trash transfer station" at the contaminated Olin Chemical Site in Wilmington, Massachusetts. It would be extremely detrimental to the lives of good, honest, hard-working citizens who have already undergone the demeaning of their lives by toxic pollution left in the towns of Woburn and Wilmington many years ago. The Olin Chemical Site is now designated a Superfund Site by the EPA, and it needs to be studied and remediated, not further polluted by the solid waste reload facility proposed by New England Transrail. 400 (initially) trucks a day of hazardous waste on our residential streets will destroy our communities.

I kindly ask you with the utmost urgency to vote NO on the Transrail request.

Most sincerely yours, Marie C. Dellovo
