Hello Brian,

I received a call last week from a contractor inquiring about the USFWS land-clearing timing recommendations to protect migratory birds. What he described to me indicated that the AK RR was planning to do some clearing for the new line this summer, during the period when of course we strongly recommend avoiding clearing in order to protect nesting birds. While I felt there must be some mistake, since the RR, and certainly this project's proponents, have been aware for many years now of our recommendations, I thought I had better contact you to check, as he was adamant, just in case.

At your earliest convenience, would you mind confirming for me that there are no plans to clear land in association with any new AK RR construction in southcentral Alaska between May 1 and July 15?

Thank you for your time,
Maureen
