Dave Navecky,
STB
Docket # FD35952

June 7, 2016

Dear Mr. Navecky,

I recently read that the federal emergency response guidelines for derailments, fires, explosions, and spills involving trains carrying volatile materials, is that there is no effective emergency response.

Firefighters should pull back a half mile and "let it burn."

So. Where does that leave us who would live only 75 feet from the railroad tracks?!!?
