On October 19, 2005 WCA board members met with the Alaska Railroad Corporation's Brett Flint, Manager for the Northern Rail Extension. Mr. Flint informed WCA board members that ARRC is seeking to extend its mainline track from the crossing at Moose Creek/Richardson Highway 80 miles southeast to Fort Greeley in order to provide support for the military and supplies to the Tanana Flats, Donnelly Training areas, and Fort Greeley. The meeting also covered some design and route aspects as well as some of the ecological and economic effect on the Big Delta and Delta Junction area.

Whitestone Community Association is in support of this project coming to completion for ecological and economic reasons. From an ecological standpoint, WCA uses private contractors to haul upwards of 140,000 to 150,000 gallons of petroleum fuels across the frozen Delta River. Other private contractors are hired as well to haul an average annually of 200,000 pounds in building, food, dry goods, and agricultural supplies, etc. This increases risk to one of the largest salmon spawning grounds in the world, as well as other habitat. During the warm season months, WCA widely uses the Tanana River to haul upwards of 160,000 pounds of perishables. This has a high negative economic impact with the rising prices in fuel and transportation costs. The Northern Line Extension could relieve the high cost and risk attributed to river transport as well as lessening the burden to it's more than 250 residents and non-residents. With the completion of the Northern Rail Extension Project, WCA is also requesting the addition of a rail spur or siding to serve WCA in supplying the community with its previously mentioned needs, as well as exporting agricultural products such as livestock, feeds, etc.

In conclusion, WCA can only envision the Northern Rail Extension as having a long-lasting, extremely positive ecological and economic impact on the community of Whitestone and surrounding area. The attached pages include the signatures of Whitestone Community members in favor of the completion of this project.

Sincerely,

Steve Selvaggio, President
