My concerns:

1. Grade level crossings (the ones I'm most interested in are the Washington Street crossing and the Hawthorne Rd crossing, both in West Chicago). There are already long delays to vehicular and pedestrian traffic at these crossings. There needs to be overpasses at each one.

2. Protection of buildings from vibrations and noise. My house is approximately 50' from the track (25' from the right away). I would like to see barriers placed to minimize the vibrations and noise.

An unusual situation at our property. There is a cattle underpass at the NW corner. That needs to be closed as a safety measure. Horned larks have been known to squat there. So far the E&E nor the township nor Farmplot have been able to get it done.

I'm not really opposed to re-passing Chicago - but it must eliminate problems not just move them from one spot to another.
